essay from the year 2013 in the subject politics general and theories of international politics grade a webster university language english abstract this critical review examines samuel p huntington s 1993 article titled the clash of civilizations in this article huntington 1993a argues that in the wake of the fall of the berlin wall international relations would no longer be dominated by an ideological conflict as was witnessed during the cold war years between capitalism and communism nor would the next pattern of conflict be dominated by state to state tensions instead as huntington argues the world would witness a clash of civilizations between a western civilization and other major civilizations in particular an islamic civilization and a confusion civilization huntington makes valid arguments in terms of what international relations would not be dominated by however the argument that a clash of civilizations based on cultural differences between the west and other civilizations is a simplistic hypothesis born out of a realist cold war paradigm samuel huntington explains how clashes between civilizations are the greatest threat to world peace but also how an international order based on civilizations is the best safeguard against war events since the publication of the book have proved the wisdom of that analysis the 9 11 attacks and wars in iraq and afghanistan have demonstrated the threat of civilizations but have also shown how vital international cross civilization cooperation is to restoring peace as ideological distinctions among nations have been replaced by cultural differences world politics has been reconfigured across the globe new conflicts and new cooperation have replaced the old order of the cold war era challenges to the study of history have been raised by globalization and by new transformations linked to postmodernism and postcolonialism this book puts forward new approaches in historical research that emphasize the dual processes of integration and fragmentation in a globalized world
