this play takes a crate of gift stamps a montreal kitchen and 15 women and mixing fast moving dialogue monologue and chorus produces a critique of women s place quebec society and modern consumerism it created uproar when first performed in 1968 being both vilified for its parochial vulgarity and praised for its revelation of the dynamic resources of popular language in the perspectives newly opened by the quiet revolution of the 1960s michel tremblay s depiction of the women s squabbles is a devastating critique at once comic and bleak of the traditional quebec ideal of catholic wife and mother killick s introduction begins by situating the realistic presentation of female subordination under achievement and frustration with the cultural development of modern quebec she then shows how it achieves added resonance as a symbol of the closed horizons of quebec society and more broadly exceeding the purely canadian context as a biting indictment of materialistic values finally les belles soeurs is examined as a virtuoso theatrical experiment combining traditional dialogue and the classical unities of time space and action with the individual and group voices of cabaret and chorale a glossary is provided for linguistic difficulties translation is tricky business the translator has to transform the foreign to the familiar while moving and pleasing his or her audience louise ladouceur knows theatre from a multi dimensional perspective that gives her research a particular authority as she moves between two of the dominant cultures of canada french and english through the analysis of six plays from each linguistic repertoire written and translated between 1961 and 2000 her award winning book compares the complexities of a translation process shaped by the power struggle between canada s two official languages the winner of the prix gabrielle roy and the ann saddlemyer book award dramatic licence addresses issues important to scholars and students of translation studies canadian literature and theatre studies as well as theatre practitioners and translators the university of alberta press acknowledges the financial support of the government of canada through the national translation program for book publishing for our translation activities foreword by e d blodgett the essays in writing between the lines explore the lives of twelve of Canada's most eminent anglophone literary translators and delve into how these individuals have contributed to the valuable process of literary exchange between francophone and anglophone literatures in Canada through individual portraits. This book traces the events and life experiences that have led with Blake, John Glassco, Philip Stratford, Joyce Marshall, Patricia Claxton, Doug Jones, Sheila Fischman, Ray Ellenwood, Barbara Godard, Susanne de Lotbinière, Harwood, John Van Burek, and Linda Gaboriau into the complex world of literary translation. Each essay portrait examines why they chose to translate and what linguistic and cultural challenges they have faced in the practice of their art, following their relationships with authors and publishers. The translators also reveal how they have defined the goals and the process of literary translation, containing original, detailed biographical and bibliographical material. writing between the lines offers many new insights into the literary translation process and the diverse roles of the translator as social agent. The first text on Canadian translators, it makes a major contribution in the areas of literary translation, comparative literature, Canadian literature, and cultural studies.
